how can human beings kill or brutalise multitudes of other human beings focusing particularly on genocide erwin staub explores the psychology of group aggression he sketches a conceptual framework for the many influences on one group's desire to harm another and within this framework considers four historical examples of genocide the end of time is a highly original and topical study of how societies and individuals deal with the meaning and passage of time richard fenn has a particular interest in time running out in making up for lost time and in what society invariably through ritual may demand in such situations by way of sacrifice fenn makes the disturbing claim that temporal panic the idea that time is short leads to the exacerbation in society of fascist tendencies fascist movements are the direct result of anxiety and panic about running out of time and may have a lasting and disastrous effect on the communities which give rise to them the message of this book is that it is exceedingly dangerous for any society to run out of time in the shadow of the millennium at the end of the century fenn discusses what the ultimate end of time might signify this exciting interdisciplinary work written by a leading sociologist of religion writing at the height of his powers will appeal to scholars of religion sociology anthropology and cultural studies alike
